Binding ability of several chiral alcohols to an insoluble glass/clay-supported organophilic stationary phase (SSOP) was studied. SSOP showed a high capacity for aryl alcohols, which make the catalytic enantioselective carbonyl hydrogenation with high selectivity and high efficiency very likely. Further, SSOP showed selective extraction of C2-methoxyphenyl group in order to prevent the release of toxic catalytic species during the reaction. Consequently, the catalytic enantioselective carbonyl hydrogenation of (S)-ketoximes with high catalytic activity and enantiomeric excess was achieved. 153 Ga. App. 118 (1980) 264 S.E.2d 262 LAWSON v. THE STATE. 60244. Court of Appeals of Georgia. Submitted September 12, 1980. Decided November 19, 1980. Robert A. Elmore, for appellant. Jeff C. Wayne, District Attorney, for appellee. BANKE, Judge. The defendant was convicted of aggravated battery. In his sole enumeration of error, he complains of the trial court's charge to the jury on the issue of justification. The evidence was essentially undisputed. The defendant had been employed at the hospital where the victim worked. The two men had entered into a dispute about the defendant's failure to take care of some paperwork properly. The victim demanded that the defendant stop being belligerent and pointed his finger at the defendant, who responded by stabbing him in the upper right arm. The victim did not notice that he had been stabbed until about two weeks later. While the defendant admitted having a knife, he explained that he had wielded it only in the air in an attempt to scare the victim and as a last resort when he had been pushed to the point of losing his temper.
