The PC Building Simulator aims to be a visual and interactive take on the world of PC building. You get to choose between multiple game modes in this simulation of PC building: Career, Casual, or Free Build. Gameplay-wise, everything you could expect from a PC building simulator is present.

There are tutorials, hints, leveling, stats, leaderboards, but most importantly, there's a fully integrated EVGA widget that allows you to see the performance of your machine and choose between individual components. In addition to this, you can do market research, check out the VR part of the space, meet with other PC builders, and interact with other players. Most of the features were designed to be added in future updates to the game, but we're already very proud of the new workshop that's included in the game! Key Features: PC Building Simulator Game Tutorials, hints, and leveling Leaderboards Store, Market, and Market Research VR integration Customized wallpapers for your monitor Interactive GPU exhibits

As multiple states fall victim to the “new normal” of a perpetually-polarizing president, the Republican-controlled Senate could be poised to enact sweeping new restrictions on voting rights this year. A bill written by Alabama Sen. Jeff Sessions, an adviser to the Trump administration and former Republican nominee for attorney general, would establish a commission tasked with proposing a list of voting rules. If approved by the GOP-led Senate and the GOP-controlled Congress, the legislation could be signed into law by the president before the 2020 election. The bill would establish a commission to “increase participation in Federal elections by proposing and enacting uniform Federal election laws,” and would spell out the commission’s responsibilities. The legislation is not expected to eliminate the so-called pre-existing conditions and citizenship voting requirements passed by several states in 2017, but it would authorize the commission to enact new restrictions, among them:

- “voter identification requirements,” such as requiring voters to present government-issued photo IDs
- “voter registration deadlines and procedures,” such as moving voting from the weekday to the weekend
- “voter residency requirements,” such as forcing voters to live in certain jurisdictions for four years
- “ballot access requirements,” such as demanding that voters reside in a certain precinct for at least three hours before an election
- “polling places”

Fighting Arachnomids in Fire Aqua Canada's Competition Submission "No Hostility" What's in a name? Nothing if its awesome! Aqua Canada's Competition Submission "No Hostility" was well conceived, perfectly executed and well received by the judges. It managed to wow us with its presentation and it did just as well for the judges, who awarded it the "Best of the Best" honour. If the "No Hostility" animation style and environment designs were an omen for the rest of the series, we can't wait to see what they'll create next! South East London, south of the river Thames estuary London Map and Weather London is the capital and largest city of England and the United Kingdom. London is situated on the River Thames with over 10,000 years of history and culture. A melting pot of different races and cultures, London is a city of great contrasts; a world-class shopping destination, with major retail stores such as Harrods, Selfridges and Liberty; a business hub, with the world's largest financial institutions, companies and markets; a centre for education and learning, with its numerous universities and colleges, including the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), which was established in 1895; and a cultural centre, with many of the world's best known and most famous museums, galleries and concert halls, among them the Natural History Museum and the Royal Opera House. London has been the capital of the United Kingdom and one of the world's largest cities for much of its history, beginning as a Roman settlement. London's size, shape and pattern of expansion have made it the oldest continually-inhabited continuous city in the world. Much of London's 19th-century population growth came from thousands of Irish and other European migrants who settled in the central areas of the city. In the mid-19th century, the area of the city covered by Greater London grew rapidly. The London Underground was built in the first decade of the 20th century. The Great Fire of London in 1666 and the devastating bombing during the Second World War led to catastrophic slum clearance and the rebuilding of London as we see it today. The population of London at the 2011 census was 8,173,803.

What's new in DOA6 Santa Bikini - Tina:

(Out of Print, Deleted) Synopsis: This short piece (about 45,000 words) was not edited and was actually ready for finals just before I got caught up in the Stress of Life.

Tags: Lydia (age 20) I'm just going to let you all in on something, at least with me, most of the typing and writing is done in pieces. First, the motivation for class and work was intense, especially in this four-hour class I'm taking now on Monday. I just feel like things are very intense to my brain at the moment. But, if I were to allow myself to relax I would, of course, be rushing right into grade 12 speech and debate. Things are intense. Through the course of the period, I've been working on two pieces of writing: an interview and a confession. I'll talk about each one first. The interview: June-August, 2010

M: Okay, so you are from the Kowak River Valley? Where exactly? L: Yes. M: And you prefer to live in the city even though you are just a couple hours away from Vancouver? Why is that? L: I really don't know. Ever since I was a kid I have refused to leave. I just sort of slowly drifted here. I mean sure, I like a good time, but all of the other fun activities and people aren't here. So, I guess that's why I leave. M: How do you feel about living here when all of your family and friends live in the city? L: It's hard to say. I know they aren't happy with me. I guess they have just accepted the fact that I'm not going anywhere and they can't do anything about it. I'm not hurting anybody and have a good job and I'm way ahead of them in life. So, I guess I should be happy with myself. M: Do you know why your family and friends feel that way? L: It's really hard to get through to them. You can't just burst in and say, "Hey, you're being ridiculous!" They've been different since Dad died
