He was saved at the age of 10, and was taken in as a nobleman's son and named "Guizel" (the honorable). He spent 10 years as a nobleman's son in the society of the Elden Lords, and was to become an important mage in an upcoming war. However, he discovered that his birth was illegal, and that he was actually a "magicless human." He became a mercenary, grew tired of the society of the Elden Lords, and left them with the message "God is watching." He became a gun-slinging mercenary, and his name changed to "Tarnished." He traveled to all corners of the Lands Between, and in the process, he met many interesting people. He has continued to wander about, and is currently at the western side of Edora, the Elden Lords' city. ■Game Mechanics Fantasy action RPG Tarnished is a casual RPG where you can enjoy the story as you travel about. -Equip your own

Obstructive pulmonary disease is the most common cause of pulmonary hypertension and often coexists with the right ventricle failure. The recent experimental researches revealed that pulmonary hypertension and right ventricular failure are probably consecutive consequence of a the lack of renin-angiotensin system (RAS) activity in chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases (COPD). In COPD patients, the blockade of angiotensin II receptors by AT1 receptor antagonists (AT1-AA) results in the improvement in pulmonary hemodynamics, right ventricular function, exercise capacity and quality of life. The recent COPD guidelines suggest the use of AT1-AA in COPD patients with elevated pulmonary arterial pressures.Hi guys,I

RPG Vanguard is a turn-based RPG where you can freely choose the abilities, materials, and other skills for your character. The universe of Vanguard is a fantasy world where the history of humanity is recorded in the Age of Legends, a massive three-dimensional world with numerous world records for its geographical and other features. How to control your character: Attack, Dodge, Block, Magic, Repeat You can freely manipulate your movement while in battle. You can also manipulate your weapons to freely block and dodge enemy attacks. Magical attacks include powerful skills, elemental attacks, and the ability to attack multiple enemies at once with elemental attributes. ... Woah this didn't work properly.. but I got the point.. Once again I have to download the game to see the awesomeness of it.. *Too bad you can't play it right away tho.. *If you want to try the game read the manual / read some players comments ^^ or you can wait patiently.. My fantasy roleplaying game which I've been designing and developing myself for years, now that I have finally released (with some delays but nevermind that). Come and join us in the FantasyFaction!net Market for an early membership. There are many changes to be made for this version and I'm still working on features but it's coming together nicely. Let me know if you need any screenshots and we'll add them to this post. Update: The game is now released officially, read on for more... This is a great fantasy game, only problem is I don't use the keyboard, and everything is a right click, and although the game is addictive, not everyone can figure out how to actually play. Start with the manual (Also part of the game, if udnerstand what I mean) Sorry about the delay, but I got a nigglerof a bug to squash. I hope you can take a look at the game and give me some feedback, you can download it here: - Greetings, my fantasy roleplaying game which I've been designing and developing myself for years, now that I have finally released (with some delays but nevermind that). God's Stairway: Through the Himalayas to the roof of the world By Ernie Altvater Jan. 9, 2008 8:44 pm ET The Blackburn Glacier is the tidewater glacier that empties into Lhotse Face of Mount Everest. The Blackburn Glacier flows off a huge mass of ice known as the Central Icefield, which measures more than 23 miles long and is the largest in the world. The ice mass originates further west, near the North Col, and flows east for over 7 miles before it reaches the Blackburn Glacier at its eastern terminus. (Edwin Moses) Advertisement The 20-mile long ice field that feeds Lhotse's South Face is the fastest moving glacier in the world. Three times a year, ice cubes as big as family cars form on the steep wall of rock known as the South Col and drop to the glacier, where they are carried as far as the Blackburn Glacier before falling back. Once, a huge chunk of ice three times the size of a school bus fell in this manner. (Edwin Moses) "We knew the upper section of the Blackburn Glacier had been frictional so we were able to predict that it would likely run down the lower cliff," said Walter. "But we found ice cubes instead of ice blocks. We had never seen this type of behavior before. One does not expect such a big object to run off the edge of a cliff, but we found that it was a very cold summer, and the ice cubes were literally melting at the top. "We thought it would have gone off the back side of the ridge, but it didn't. The ice was still intact at the terminus, but it was flat and actually ran along the precipice for a couple hundred meters. We had never seen such behavior in a glacier that was over 400 meters in depth. "We stood there and looked out over the vastness, with mountains on all sides. I had never seen a glacier before and was amazed by the scale. It was a curious sight." "To the south is the South Col," said Simon Conway Morris, a research geologist at the British Geological Survey. "It's a huge mass of ice that dominates the skyline of Lhotse, with a sheer face more than 4,000 meters high that provides the only route up to the top. The North Col is on the same ridge line on the opposite
