“We’ve long believed that ‘video game technology’ and ‘authentic football’ are not mutually exclusive,” said David Rutter, Head of FIFA. “For years, we have been using motion capture to give players a competitive edge that no other game delivers. Now, for the first time we can add real-life player movement to our game, and we’re excited about how it will alter FIFA gameplay.” FIFA 22 introduces “HyperMotion Technology,” which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay. The integration of the player’s movements in FIFA 22 has increased the difficulty of the game since players receive immediate and precise feedback when receiving a pass, when being tackled or when controlling free kicks. When players move in the space, the ball does as well, creating a fluid and responsive experience that makes moments of inspiration and control more exciting and unpredictable. FIFA 22 also introduces the new “Dynamic Variations,” which alters the size and angle of the player pitch (goal area) when a goal is scored. This change adds additional depth and excitement to goal scoring, as players can experience a completely different result depending on their actions during the match. The customization of player pitch through “Dynamic Variations” further enhances the authentic football experience. Players can now make individual adjustments to the size, distance, width and pitch orientation of their pitch, to create their own unique experiences and results in FIFA 22. The highly popular “Skill Moves” returns in FIFA 22, including the “Lift and Throw,” the “Saving Throw,” the “Top and Backward Throw” and the “Crossing Throw.” Players will also see the return of “Goal Hook,” “Goal Poke” and “Goal Kick.” They will all be available in FIFA Ultimate Team, and can be unlocked using EA SPORTS Football Traditions Credits. FIFA Ultimate Team’s Community Leagues are returning in FIFA 22. Players can earn a fresh start in their favorite Community Leagues, helping to advance them to the next level of the competition. Players can play a wide range of competitions including
