DAVAO CITY, Philippines – An activist group said police should monitor the activities of a certain office-holder for the interest of the public, even with her being a party-list representative in the House of Representatives. Wilma Stay, official spokesperson of the Negosyo for the Poor, said newly elected representative Ginette Basa of the Magdalo Electoral Alliance has been using “earthly donations” to fund her campaign. ADVERTISEMENT The Negosyo for the Poor is an advocacy group that fights for the cause of farmers and advocates agricultural development in the country. Basa on Thursday said her campaign was getting funding from “earthly” donations. “I want to take all the people’s money. This is the kind of politics we see in this country. But, in Negosyo, our people can’t give in cash, they can give in kind,” she said. Continue reading below Basa said she was collecting clothes, pots, pans, and water containers for her campaign. “It doesn’t need to be an election to use such donations,” she said. “We have to be mindful of these things that affect our people.” Asked about the ethicality of her doing such, she said, “Maybe ‘mosyong’ doesn’t mean ethical.” READ: Ginette blasts ‘mosyong’ Bagong Alyansang Makabayan for eyeing her post “But if the people elect you in a position, you owe them your service,” she said. Basa has served as representative of the third congressional district of Negros Oriental province from 2007 to 2010 and is now from Negros Occidental. ADVERTISEMENT Basa’s campaign is in opposition to the reelection bid of former Representative Richard Gordon. Citi Foundation of the Citi Foundation, which is supporting Gordon’s bid for reelection, opposed the offering of “earthly” donations and that the lawmaker should adhere to the standard set by the Philippine National Red Cross for campaigns. “It is highly unethical to use donations in the name of a 595f342e71
