In the first studies of prevalence of alcohol use disorders (abuse or dependence) in the general population and in the patient population, DSM-III criteria were used to classify the disease. In the general population, rates of alcohol abuse and dependence were found to vary widely by sex, age, and race. About 1-7% of US men and 0-4% of US women in the general population have DSM-III criteria for alcohol abuse or dependence. Alcohol use disorders may manifest at any time after the age of 14 in children, adolescents, and young adults. Prevalence rates vary by age group, race, and sex. In the US, DSM-III alcohol abuse and dependence occur in about 3-5% of men and 1-2% of women. Significant cross-national differences in epidemiological rates of alcohol abuse and dependence have also been found. The rate of alcoholism in a family may be related to the average intake of alcohol by the family members. In some cases, a family with alcohol abuse also has a high rate of other psychiatric disorders and social and occupational difficulties.Q: PHP foreach does not display the values I have got the following scenario. $obj=1; $arr=array('col1','col2','col3'); $arr2=array('val1','val2','val3'); I want to display the values from the 2 arrays to the following code (3 conditions) if ($obj==1) { for ($i=0; $i
