When I receive data from the server, it contains a bool value. What I try to do is to check whether the bool value is true or false. However, it does not work. I tried both cases. How to show the correct result of my request? type ServerData = { a: bool; b: string; c: int } dataHub.post('/datashub/pass', dataHub.jsSave(true) |> mapToSignal).mapToSignal = (boolValue: bool) => (boolValue === true)? { c: 1, b: 'hello world', a: 'ok' } : (boolValue === false)? { c: 2, b: 'bye world', a: 'ok' } : null Note: The response is Ok. The response body cannot be shown. It only contain the bool value. A: you have to call your mapToSignal like this mapToSignal({ a: true, b: 'hello world', c: 1 }) but the interesting is that you can see on type signature that you get a signal with either :T:bool, bool or T with no arguments. 1.
