Identification of a ceramide C-mannosyltransferase in Saccharomyces cerevisiae. Ceramide C-mannosyltransferase was identified in Saccharomyces cerevisiae. This enzyme catalyzes the first step in the biosynthetic pathway for the mannosylation of ceramide. The enzyme is encoded by the POT1 gene. The POT1 gene was cloned by complementation of a pmyo-2 mutant. The gene is highly homologous to the POT1A and POT1B genes of Saccharomyces cerevisiae and codes for ceramide C-mannosyltransferase. The enzymatic properties of the enzyme were identical to those of the POT1B protein. The POT1 gene was disrupted by gene replacement and the wild-type strain and the mutant were constructed. In the mutant, the total ceramide content in the cell wall was reduced by about 35%. The resulting mutant strain does not grow when grown on surfaces coated with ceramide.
