the environmental and urban studies (e&us) minor is designed to provide students with an integrated understanding of the relations between the natural and built environments, and between environment and human society. it is intended to develop the skills and knowledge, interest, and enthusiasm necessary to undertake study in one or more of the disciplines in the university. this minor has been developed in response to many of the core issues raised by the climate emergency, and the students enrolled in the minor will take an interdisciplinary approach to studying society and environment. the minor will develop student skills and knowledge in the areas of science, technology, and society; as well as theoretical, analytical, and methodological skills that equip students for research and teaching in environmental and urban studies. students may pursue the e&us minor through one of two pathways: a general entry pathway to the minor, or a pathway to the major in environmental and urban studies. the e&us minor may be chosen via the environmental or urban specialization track in the major. students seeking to pursue the minor following the general entry pathway will need to complete the preliminary minor study plan. this minor is designed to be integrated into the core and minor components of the major. a student who chooses the environmental/urban specialization track in the major (see the e&us major outline at https://maplefaculty.uwaterloo.ca/wp-content/uploads/2019/07/eussmajor.pdf) must complete the preliminary minor study plan in addition to the major study plan. students who complete the preliminary minor study plan will be considered to have the minor in place for the academic year in which they complete the major. students who do not complete the major study plan will not be able to receive the minor credit for that year. 5ec8ef588b
